White Church Ends Apartheid Support

Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 22—The main white branch of the Dutch Reformed Church, this country's largest Afrikaner denomination, today reversed its longtime support of racial segregation and called the system of apartheid an unjust error.

The church synod, attended by 400 clerics and elders, also agreed to open membership to all races if approved by local church councils. It rejected a proposal to merge with its separate branches for blacks, Asians and people of mixed race.

"The use of apartheid as a socio-political system, which causes injustice to people . . . cannot be accepted on Christian ethical grounds because it militates against the principles of brotherly love . . ." a synod statement said.

The synod addressed the issue of apartheid for the first time in 12 years.

In the past, the church supported apartheid, the policy of racial segregation in which the nation's 24 million blacks have no vote in national affairs and the 5 million member white minority controls the economy and government.

One of the two smaller Dutch Reformed Churches, the Nederduitsch Hervormd Kerk, is a firm supporter of apartheid.
