SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION 159—
INTRODUCTION OF JOINT RESOLUTION DESIGNATING JANUARY 15 OF EACH YEAR AS MARTIN LUTHER KING DAY

Mr. BROOKE. Mr. President, the renewed outbursts of civil disorder in the cities of America are costly and futile counterpoints to the profound sense of grief which has swept across this Nation since last Thursday. The lasting imprint on this country's conscience and behavior will not be made by the misguided and reckless participants in these disturbances, however vividly we may remember the ugly scenes of these few days. The lasting impressions will be those etched in our memory by the good life and good works of the man whose death last week bound the great majority of Americans together in outrage and mourning.

All over the land people are seeking appropriate ways to express their bereavement at the passing of Martin Luther King, Jr. In these first days of our loss proper tribute has been paid to Dr. King, not in the streets, but in the churches and chapels, the schools and homes of the United States. And I am confident that the greater and lingering tribute will come in further action toward the glorious goals of brotherhood and justice so diligently pursued by Martin Luther King, Jr.

As Americans, individually and collectively, rededicate themselves to these ends, it would be fitting to pay our respects to this noble figure by enduring public commemoration of his life and philosophy.

For this purpose I believe the Congress should declare January 15, the birthday of Martin Luther King, Jr., an annual occasion of recognition for this man and his mission. To accomplish this I am today submitting the following joint resolution:

S.J. RES. 159

Whereas the United States of America is deeply grieved by the vicious and senseless act which ended the life of the Reverend Doctor Martin Luther King, Junior, this country's apostle of nonviolence;

Whereas the United States of America, and its Senators and Representatives in Congress, recognize and appreciate the immense contribution and sacrifice of this dedicated American;

Whereas the American people are determined that the life and works of this great man shall not be obscured by violence and anger, but rather that they shall remain a shining symbol of the Nation's nonviolent struggle for social progress;

Whereas it is incumbent upon us to recognize the violence, hatred, and national division do no honor to the man who has been taken from us;

Whereas mutual respect and a firm commitment to the ideals of nonviolence for which he labored will be the most lasting memorial to the life of the Reverend Doctor Martin Luther King, Junior;

Whereas it is fervently hoped that his death may serve to reconcile those among us who have harbored hatred and resentment for their fellow Americans, to the end that our country may at last realize the ideal of equality set forth in our Constitution: Therefore, it is hereby

of each year is hereby designated as "Martin Luther King Day". The President is authorized and requested to issue a proclamation each year calling upon the people of the United States to commemorate the life and the service to his country and its citizens of the Reverend Doctor Martin Luther King, Junior, and to observe that day with appropriate honors, ceremonies, and prayers.

This proposal is not one I make lightly, but in the earnest conviction that we need to do all that we can to perpetuate the spirit and example of Martin Luther King, Jr. It is already evident that he occupies a unique place in American history. The values he epitomized are the very values which this country needs to sustain it on the march toward a more humane and equitable society.

I make this suggestion fully mindful of the fact that very few Americans have been so honored. No Negro American has yet been added to that small company of distinguished patriots who have received such tribute. At this time, more than any other, this Nation needs to raise up for itself and its posterity the image of reconciliation encompassed in the person of Martin Luther King. Approval of this resolution would be one measure of our commitment to do so.

Honor is not enough, but it is due. Symbols are not the substance of action, but in the long and complex paths of social evolution, symbols are also necessary. Dedication of a day each year to commemorate Martin Luther King, Jr., and his legacy to our Nation would symbolize in fitting manner our reverence for the man and our devotion to his principles.

Mr. COOPER. Mr. President, I hesitate to speak at all following the eloquent statement of the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts.

I merely rise to say that I believe that, better than anyone else, the Senator from Massachusetts clearly states the situation and the problems which face this country today.

I had the opportunity to listen to him yesterday on a television program. And it seemed to me that if our Government and its leaders and the people of our country follow the counsel and advice he gave on yesterday, our country could move from this growing alienation of the two great groups in our country and could move to that of equality which our Constitution promises, and, into a reconciliation of the two great peoples and fellow citizens of our country.

Mr. BROOKE. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Kentucky for his very kind and very generous remarks relative to my appearance yesterday on "Face the Nation."

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The joint resolution will be received and appropriately referred.

The joint resolution (S.J. Res. 159) designating January 15 of each year as "Martin Luther King Day," was received, read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages in writing from the President of the United States submitting nominations were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Geisler, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session,

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations, which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(For nominations this day received, see the end of Senate proceedings.)

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL NOON
WEDNESDAY

Mr. BYRD of West Virginia. Mr. President, if there be no further business to come before the Senate, I move in accordance with the order previously entered, that the Senate stand in adjournment until 12 o'clock meridian on Wednesday next.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 12 o'clock and 54 minutes p.m.) the Senate adjourned until Wednesday, April 10, 1968, at 12 o'clock meridian.
