17 Hours Into Long Speech, Booker Outlines Threat Trump Administration Poses to Environmental Policy, Energy Prices, Clean Energy Jobs, and Climate Action

APRIL 01, 2025

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Today, during his long speech, U.S. Senator Cory Booker (D-NJ) spoke on the Senate floor about the existential threat President Trump and his administration pose to crucial efforts to address environmental pollution and climate change, including rolling back regulations that ensure Americans have access to clean air and clean water, reversing policies that would lower energy costs for Americans, cancelling projects that would create good-paying jobs for working families, and ceding U.S. leadership in the global effort to tackle the climate crisis.

Booker took to the Senate floor beginning at 7pm ET last night with the intention of speaking as long as he is physically able to uplift the stories of Americans who are being harmed by the Trump Administration’s reckless actions, attempts to undermine our institutions, and disregard for the rule of law.
